Adding to its robust aluminum framing product portfolio metric series, Bosch Rexroth is expanding its offering in North America to include the Inch 10 and 15 series. With 9 strut profiles and over 100 components to choose from, Bosch Rexroth continues its commitment to provide unbeatable flexibility for the design of your assembly line. Our new Inch series is backed by our over 40 years of experience continuously enhancing aluminum extrusion and providing high-quality and versatile final products.

When built, the end result is a strong, yet lightweight structure that's as functional as it is attractive. Like our industry-proven metric series, the high-strength aluminum profiles have a natural-color, anodized surface that is scratch- and corrosion-resistant, never needs painting, and is virtually maintenance-free.
